

North Korea’s Kim Jong Un, wife, watch South Korean K-pop stars perform in Pyongyang

Notes & Cues:	Article: North Korean leader Kim Jong Un and his wife, Ri Sol Ju, were among the hundreds in Pyongyang on Sunday watching South Korean K-pop singers perform in the North for the first time in more than a decade as tensions between the old rivals thaw. It was the first time a North Korean leader had attended a South Korean performance in the North’s capital. Kim was seen clapping in tune to some of the songs and took photographs with the performers after the show. ”Our dear leader comrade said his heart swelled and he was moved by the sight of his people deepen their understanding of South Korean popular culture and cheer with sincerity, ” the North’s KCNA state media said. Sunday’s performance coincided with the start of annual joint South Korean-U.S. military drills, which have previously been met with denunciations and missile launches by the North, and were delayed and shortened this year in order not to overshadow the Olympic detente. The two Koreas are technically still at war after the 1950-1953 conflict ended with a ceasefire rather than a peace agreement.
Summary:	